

Hello! I'm William. Today, my family and I are going to visit Grandpa and Grandma. They live across town, and it's such a lovely day for a walk. Will you come along? Our city is a bit different than most. For example, they're building a new house here. But it seems a bit odd to me. What do you think?

At the end of the street, there's a playground we can stop at. My family loves the aero-slide. Whoosh! What would you like to play on?
